WASHINGTON LETTER.

[From our Regular Correspondent.]

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26, 1909.

Since I last wrote President-elect Taft and the distinguished engineers who accompanied him to Panama have returned and made their report and the President in turn has sent a message to Congress confirming the information that has already been given that the lock type of canal is the only one approved by the engineers and the President-elect who, after a very careful study of the ground have expressed their preference for this type rather than for the sea level canal. The President has sent a special message to Congress on the subject in which he characterizes further advocacy of the less desirable and more expensive sea level canal as "foolish."

The President-elect has made it known that he will after the inauguration, call Congress in special session to be assembled on March the 15th.

The apparently petty complications standing in the way of Senator Knox of Pennsylvania, to his acceptance of the cabinet office under the new President, have been swept away by special enactment of Congress and there now appears to be no doubt that he will be the Secretary of State under the new administration.

The President-elect has returned to his Cincinnati home, while Mrs. Taft, it is understood, is adding to her wardrobe in New York.

Only about ten legislative days and nights remain for this Congress and there are a number of important appropriation bills not yet enacted. There has been filbustering in the Senate and threats of filibustering in the House. The House is restless and even recalcitrant under the despotism of Speaker Cannon. There is much talk among the insurgents and mutterings of revolts from both Democrats and Republicans. The same condition prevails in the Senate, where Senator La Follette of Wisconsin is effectively protesting against the autocracy of Aldrich, Hale, Penrose and Gallinger. During the week he has successfully resisted Senator Hale, who attempted the immediate passage of the naval appropriation bill; and also Senator Penrose, who attempted to rush the Post office bill through without debate. Mr. La Follette began with arguments against the general policy of withholding appropriation bills until it was to late for other Senators to inquire into them. This led Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania to ask, with sarscasm, if the Senate had to be compelled to listen to another Chautauqua lecture. Mr. La Follette, unmindful of the interruption, continued with his remarks and intimated that Penrose had not given enough attention to the preparation of the Post Office budget and that the measure had not been properly prepared. Then Mr Penrose arose in wrath and in a few moments there was a sensation, recognized both on the Senate floor and in the galleries. His arraignment was bitter and he concluded it with the remark that Mr. La Follette's arguments "might better be made by a vendor of patent medicines, from the tail end of a cart in some obscure village in Wisconsin than by a Senator of the United States."

It became evident yesterday that the plans for the conservation of the natural resources of the country had passed the experimental stage and have become continental instead of national, inasmuch as Canada and Mexico are giving enthsiastic co-operation to the great enterprise. These facts became apparent in the opening address of President Roosevelt this week in the East Room of the White House and the sentiment was strengthened later in the day in the State Department by speeches made by representatives from other governments In these speeches, it was recognized that international streams are affected by cutting forests on either side of the boundary and that conservation plans, to be effective, must be international.

Mr. Hepburn, of Iowa, one of the most capable and influential members of the Lower House, attacked the House rules this week and referring to plank in the last national Democratic platform, denouncing the rules of the House as at present enforced, said: "I am one of those who would condemn the ten commandments if by some accident the Democratic party should adopt them. For fifty years it has been my duty to criticize the Democratic party, but this particular plank is consoling to my soul." After Colonel Hepburn's speech, Speaker Cannon agreed to make a concession to the House insurgents by setting apart a day each week for the consideration of the bills on the calendar. Thisis one of the principal privileges demanded by the insurgents.

Burglar Kills Chief of Police.

Capt. Timothy Hassett, chief of police, of Olean, was shot and instantly killed last Sunday morning, about three o'clock, in an encounter with N. H. Dressler, a burglar who was looting the Droney Lumber Company's office in Masonic Temple. Early Sunday morning, Chief of Police Frank Mundy was notified of the murder and, assisted by the State Constabulary, kept a close watch of all trains entering Emporium, as well as all strangers

The Union Telephone Company, of Olean, has offices in the Temple block and about 3 o'clock Sunday morning Ruby Borst, the night operator, heard somebody in the office of the Droney Lumber Company. Thinking that the person might be a burglar, the young lady telephoned to police headquarters and Captain Hassett promptly responded to the summons. On entering the office of the Droney Lumber company, the policeman encountered Dressler and a desperate battle followed. Each man had a revolver and both opened fire. A bullet from the burglar's weapon plowed its way through the brave officer's head and he fell to the floor and instantly expired.

Dressler had been shot three times during the battle. Two bullets had entered his abdomen and he had another wound on the hip. In spite of his wounds, Dressler started to run from the building. Policeman Fred Vollmer, who had arrived at the Masonic building, met the murder in the hallway. Dressler, without a moment's hesitation fired at the officer and rushed down stairs. On the sidewalk he encountered Officer Moses and a hand-to-hand conflict ensued. The bandit succeeded in breaking away from Moses and ran towards Laurens street, with Moses in hot pursuit. He met Joseph Shoemaker, who tried to intercept him. "Get out of the way or I will blow a hole through you." the burglar shouted, flourishing a revolver. Shoemaker was unarmed and the policemen were forced to give up the chase.

Outside towns were notified to be on the lookout for Dressler and the city was thoroughly searched. About one o'clock in the afternoon, Norman Haney, an employee of Shoemaker's restaurant on State street, told the police that he had met a man on Saturday afternoon, who tallied with the description of the murderer. He said the man's name was Dressler and that he was a guest at the Olean House.

The police found Dressler registered at the hotel and went to his room. In response to a knock, Dressler invited the officers to enter. They found the man in bed and at once placed him under arrest. The burglar realized that he had no chance to escape and quietly surrendered. He then admitted the shooting. He said that he tried to patch up a truce with Captain Hassett, when that officer caught him in the Droney office. Hassett would not consider anything but surrender and the encounter followed, which resulted in the officer's death.

The burglar died from his injuries Tuesday morning. His parents, who reside in Canada were notified. His father came to claim the body, and removed it to his home.

President-Elect Taft Speaks in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Feb. 22.—President-elect Taft was the principal speaker at the exercises of the University of Pennsylvania commemorative of the birth of George Washington to-day. The subject of his address was "The Present Relations of Learned Professions to Political Government."

Judge Taft discussed at considerable length the influences which learned professions in this day have upon natianal and municipal government. He outlined luminously the part each of the important professions plays in a government by the people and compared their influence, one with another. Refering to newspapers and the press Judge Taft said:

"Its power of public instruction is very great, but when it panders to vulgarist taste for sensationalism and becomes entirely irresponsible in its influence for good, its pernicious tendency is obviated only by the power of the people to protect themselves against it by safe discrimmination and healthy skepticism." Concluding he said:

"The National exigency seem to call forth men peculiarly fitted to meet the requirements of the situation. Such were Lincoln and Grant during the civil war; such was Washington in the Revolutionary war, the anniversary of whose birth this University appropriately makes its commencement day. He was not a lawyer, a doctor or a minister but he was a leader of men."

Why "Quakers."

Members of the Society of Friends are frequently designated by outsiders as "Quakers," but few people probably have any idea that Quakers is a nickname given in scorn. George Fox, the founder of the sect, gives the origin of the name in his journal. "Justice Bennet of Derby was the first to call us 'Quakers,' because I bade him quake and tremble at the Word of the Lord." This occurred in 1650.

Hard Tasks in Life.

THE PROFESSIONS AND GOVERNMENT

PRESIDENT - ELECT TAFT TALKS OF INFLUENCES THEY MAY EXERT.

SHOWS DUTY OF THE CITIZEN

Address Before the University of Pennsylvania on the Present Relation of the Learned Professions to Political Government Coupled with a Eulogy of the Life and Works of George Washington—The First President's High Character as a Man.

Philadelphia, Feb. 22.—Hon. William H. Taft, president-elect of the United States, was the principal speaker at the exercises in the University of Pennsylvania, commemorative of the birth of Washington.

He chose for the subject of his address the "Present Relations of the Learned Professions to Political Government." He discussed at considerable length the influence which the learned professions, in this day, have upon national and municipal government. He outlined luminously the part each of the important professions plays in a government by the people and compared their influence, one with another. In brief part, he said:

"It is the duty of every citizen to give as much attention as he can to the public weal, and to take as much interest as he can in political matters. Americans generally have recognized these duties, and we find active in political life, men representing all professions, all branches of business and all trades. I propose to-day to invite your attention to the present relation of each of the learned professions to politics and government.

Ministry Placed First.

"The first profesison is that of the ministry. Time was in New England, and in every other part of the country under the influence of its traditions, when the minister of the Congregational church, in addition to that of his sacred office, exercised a most powerful influence, which was of a distinctly political character. His views on the issues of the day were considered of the greatest weight in the community in which he lived, and he ranked everyone as its first citizen. This was in the days when New England might almost be called a 'theocracy;' when it was deemed wise and politically proper to regulate by law, to the minutest detail, the manner of life of men, and as these laws were understood to be framed in accord with moral and religious requirements, the minister of the community was the highest authority as to what the law should be and how it ought to be enforced. Great changes have come over our methods of life since that day. Then the ministry, because of the rewards in the way of influence, power and prominence, attracted the ablest of educated minds, and the ability and force of character were where power and influence resided. But the spread of education and independent thinking, the wide diffusion of knowledge and news by the press, the enormous material development of the country, the vast increase in wealth, the increase in rewards and influence of other vocations, the disappearance of the simple village life, have all contributed to change radically the position and influence of the ministry in the community. To-day it is not true that that profession attracts the ablest young men, and this, I think, is a distinct loss to our society, for it is of the utmost importance that the profession whose peculiar duty it is to maintain high moral standards and to arouse the best that there is in man, to stir him to higher aspirations, should have the genius and brilliancy with which successfully to carry out this function. Of course, the profession of ministry is supposed to have to do largely with the kingdom of the next world rather than with this, and many people expect to find in the representatives of the profession only an other worldliness and no thought of this. This, of course, is the narrowest view of the profession. Whatever the next world, we are certainly under the highest obligation to make the best of this, and the ministers should be the chief instruments in making this world morally and religiously better. It is utterly impossible to separate politics from the lives of the community, and there cannot be general personal and social business morality and political immorality at the same time. The latter will ultimately debauch the whole community.

Has Made Improvement.

"During the administration of Mr. Roosevelt, and under the influence of certain revelations of business immorality, the conscience of the whole country was shocked and then nerved to the point of demanding that a better order of affairs be introduced. In this movement the ministers of the various churches have recognized the call upon them to assist, and they have been heard in accents much more effective than ever before in half a century. The greatest agency to-day in keeping us advised of the conditions among oriental races is the establishment of foreign missions. The leaders of these missionary branches of the churches are becoming some of our most learned statesmen in respect of our proper oriental policies."

Judge Taft, discussing teachers, said that "their relation to politics and government is of the utmost importance, though indirect." He went on:

"The next profession is that of the teacher. Of course, the great number of teachers are engaged in primary and secondary instruction and in industrial or vocational work. Their relation to politics and government is of the utmost importance though indirect. It is, and ought to be, their highest duty to instill in the minds of the young girls and boys the patriotism and love of country, because the boy is father to the man and the patriotism of the extreme youth of the country may well determine that of the grown men. The effect of an intense patriotism which thrills through the nerves of the boys of a country is illustrated in the immense strength which Japan derives from it. No one who visits that interesting country or comes into contact with the Japanese can avoid seeing its patriotism. The term 'Bushido,' is a kind of apotheosis of patriotism. The joy with which Japanese give up their lives in defense of their country has its foundation in a real religious feeling, and is most inspiring to all who come to know it. It should be full of significance to those of the teaching profession who become responsible for the thoughts and ideals of the young."

To the writer, in whatever capacity he may labor, Judge Taft attributed great influence, either for good or for bad.

Judge Taft paid a high tribute to the profession of medicine, because it had contributed to the preservation of the health of all the people. He pointed out that the profession had been exalted by its great discoveries and by its assistance in the expansion of our government in the tropics and in the construction of the Panama canal. He said:

Medical Profession Eulogized.

"The triumph which has been reached in the name of the medical profession in the discovery as to the real cause of yellow fever and malaria and the suppression of those diseases by killing or preventing the propagation of, or the infection of the mosquito, is one of the wonders of human progress. It has made the construction of the Panama canal possible. It has rendered life in the tropics for immigrants from the temperate zone consistent with health and reasonable length of life, and it has opened possibilities in the improvement of the health and strength of tropical races themselves under governmental teaching, assistance and supervision that were unthought of two decades ago. Sanitary engineering with its proper treatment of water, making it wholesome and harmless with its removal of the filth and sewage and its conversion of what was noxious into most useful agencies, all confirm the governmental importance of the profession of medicine and the kindred technical profession of chemistry, engineering and all branches of physical research. So marked has been this increase in the importance of the medical profession in governmental agencies, that the doctors themselves have organized a movement for the unification of all agencies in the federal government used to promote the public health, in one bureau or department, at the head of which they wish to put a man of their own or kindred branch of science. How near this movement will come in accomplishing the complete purpose of its promoters, only the national legislature can tell. Certainly the economy of the union of all health agencies of the national government in one bureau or department is wise. Whether at the head of that department should be put a doctor of medicine or some other person must depend on the individual and not on his technical professional learning or skill. It is the capacity to organize, co-ordinate and execute that is needed at the head of a department, and not so much deep technical and professional skill. It is the ability to judge whether others have such technical or professional skill that the head of the department who makes the selection of the members of his department should be endowed with. However this may be, it is becoming more and more clear that the extending of governmental duties into a territory covered by the profession of medicine is bringing physicians more and more into political and governmental relation, and we may expect that in the next decade they will play a far greater part than they have heretofore; and it is proper that they should."

Washington's Greatness.

After mentioning the great good, in actual results, accomplished by many technical professions, Judge Taft considered in extent the profession of the law, which, he said, "is in a wide sense the profession of government." He said that lawyers often were selected to carry on governmental work, because the executive faculty was a very marked attribute of the modern lawyer. While he realized that there were defects and weaknesses in the profession of the law, he regarded it as the most important in its relation to political government. In conclusion, he said: "National exigency seems to call forth the men peculiarly fitted to meet the requirements of the situation. Such were Lincoln and Grant during the great civil war. Such was Washington in the revolution, the anniversary of whose birthday this university appropriately makes its Commencement Day. He was not a lawyer or a doctor, or a minister. He was a leader of men. His pure, disinterested patriotism, his freedom from small jealousies, his marvelous common sense, his indomitable perseverance and patience, and his serenity and calm under the most trying circumstances, gave him the victory—a victory which could be traced not to brilliant genius or professional training but to that which, of all things, is the most to be pursued and desired—to his high character as a man."

WORK FOR MR. TAFT

PROBABLE RESULT OF VISIT TO THE CANAL ZONE.

Matters of Political Administration Rather Than Engineering Problems Are Likely to Have Interested Him There.

Mr. Taft's visit to the Isthmus of Panama is likely to be more fruitful as regards the general administration there than with reference to the engineering problems of the canal. Dispatches inform us that he has made a "personal inspection" of the Gatun dam, but the country has been mistaken in Mr. Taft if he is one of those who profess expert knowledge upon every subject, and are ready to pass judgment, by intuition, upon matters on which professional judgment hesitates.

It is well worth while for Mr. Taft to familiarize himself with the general conditions surrounding this great work and with the activities of the men conducting it, but that he can learn anything of value about the stability of the Gatun dam by looking at it is scarcely conceivable. The real importance of his present expedition will depend upon the use which the engineers accompanying him shall make of their opportunities for close observation. Even with them, the problems involved are matters of calculation, based upon scientific reports, and not upon superficial view.

The most that the country hopes for at this time is that the engineers' conclusions shall be complete, convincing and final, and that they shall then be adopted and acted upon. In matters of political administration on the canal zone there is evidently need of much adjustment, for which Mr. Taft himself is peculiarly qualified. The construction of the canal is one of the many large responsibilities to which he is shortly to succeed, and his patience and tact and his recognition of the value of sound counsel have much to do with the general confidence in his success. If these qualities had been brought to bear earlier, it is possible that the work would now be on a firmer basis.

Preparedness for War.

It is unfortunate but true that boasts of our ability to whip any other nation and sneers at naval and military preparedness have never put an army to flight or sunk an enemy's battleship when war was actually upon us. The answer to requests for adequate organization and equipment is that war scares are manufactured and that nobody will ever want to fight us. These objections are childish, are discredited by history and cannot be believed in many cases to be sincere. Whoever knows anything at all is aware that Japan is just now a very chesty power; that she could take the Philippines and Hawaii in four weeks and that with our present resisting power on the Pacific coast immense damage might be inflicted or tribute exacted before we could repel her forces of invasion. The only wise course is for us to complete as soon as possible our fortification scheme in the Philippines, Hawaii and along our Pacific coast; to increase our present paltry 14,000 military strength in the Philippines; to keep the navy at its present strength or greater, replacing continuously old ships by new; to encourage an auxiliary and convertible merchant fleet and to perfect a reserve army of militia capable of instant enlistment and amalgamation with the regular army. Experience shows positively that sooner or later unpreparedness means heavy penalty in blood and treasure.—Indianapolis Star.

Fining Corporations.

It has often been remarked when fines were assessed against large commercial institutions for what were formerly regarded as "conventional" violations of the law that they meant no particular hardship to the objects of such penalties. "What," it has been the custom to inquire, "do even very large fines against a corporation like the Standard Oil Company signify to a corporation of its vast wealth?" Well, they signify a very great deal, and quite as much to an institution with a lust for money, such as the Standard possesses, as to corporations of much less magnitude. Every fine that is made to hold against a corporation that sets at defiance the requirements of the law augments the authority of the community, the state or the government; and no portent of the regeneration of business on the lines of decency and morality is so cheering and satisfying as the style which the highest courts are finding for making fines for rebating and for practices in restraint of competition stick against corporations that formerly pursued these policies with none to molest or to make afraid.—Kansas City Times.

Taft on the Canal Job.

If the adverse criticism of the plans and construction of the Panama canal has made any headway, it ought to be effectually answered by the preliminary report of Mr. Taft and the expert engineers who have accompanied him in the present tour of investigation. This report already confirms all that has been claimed as to the feasibility and cost of the lock system, the efficiency of the construction so far carried forward, and the competence of those in immediate charge of the enterprise. It is especially significant that while it is admitted that the original estimate of the cost may have to be raised, the alarming figures given out by the opponents of the canal are preposterous.

LIE WAS PROMPTLY NAILED.

Representative Rainey's Charges Disproved by Charles P. Taft.

Mr. Charles P. Taft meets Representative Rainey's charges in connection with the Panama transaction by telegraphing from Havana that he has 'never had any business association of any kind, past, present or prospective, with William Nelson Cromwell, or with anyone else, past, present or prospective, on the Isthmus of Panama."

Mr. Rainey disclaims the "desire to controvert in any way the statement of Mr. Taft." He thereupon falls back in pursuing his attack on Cromwell, against whom the evidence which Mr. Rainey cites is of the same hearsay character as that against Taft. But that is a minor matter. The only feature of any moment in Mr. Rainey's speech was the attempt to fix on the president-elect's brother connection with the grant of a railroad and timber concesion in Panama. The question of such a concession granted by the legislature of a foreign country to ordinary American citizens depends on a large number of considerations, evidence on which is not before the public. But the only thing in Mr. Rainey's blast that would have weight, if true, was the imputation that close family connection with the then secretary of war and now president-elect was used to advance enterprises of that character.

Mr. Rainey's previous disposition and the tenor of his speech contributed to the impresion that this charge was the product of a lively imagination. His prompt acceptance of Mr. Taft's denial places that conclusion beyond dispute. Though he makes an attempt to claim that there is something left of his charges, they are really reduced to the status of a burst gas balloon which makes a loud noise and leaves nothing but a bad smell.

Two New Battleships.

Two new battleships were ordered by the naval appropriation bill passed by the house. This very reasonable, moderate and necessary addition to the navy was opposed, of course, by the professional peace advocates.

Mr. Bartholdt of Missouri, for example, declared there never was a time when to build more warships was as "unwise and unnecessary" as now. "We are at peace with all the world," he said, "and we have wisely managed to safeguard our peace as it has never been before." And Mr. Slayden of Texas wanted more battleships refused as "a declaration to the world that the United States neither desires nor expects war."

What would be the use? No civilized nation desires war. The days of war for direct profit—like some of the wars of the so-called Roman republic and at least one of the Crusades—have long since passed.

But so long as men are men, and nations are composed of men and not of angels, and national rivalries for control of the earth and of use of its fruits exist, all nations must expect war—unless willing or compelled to play the part of a Switzerland or a Belgium. And as the strong man armed is least likely to be attacked, the nation prepared for war is surest of peace.

There was another aspect of the passing of this bill that calls for public attention. The Washington dispatches assume and assert that fear of war with Japan in the near future was a potent argument for the retention of the battleship item. If so, that item was a singularly futile way of meeting the alleged danger. The new ships could not be ready under two or three years. We doubt that fear of war with Japan had anything to do with the appropriation.

Getting the Truth.

One result of the visit of Mr. Taft to the Panama canal zone is an amplitude of disproof of recent sensational reports. The Gatun dam is not a failure; it is not even in the doubtful class. The Culebra cut is being cut at a rate that insures completion before 1915. There is no thought of abandoning the lock canal at the level decided upon.

Yet we may expect many more sensational reports of failure during the six years estimated for finishing the waterway. It is the chief amusement of some writers to find imaginary obstacles in the way of every great work. De Lesseps failed in Panama. The whole American people are interested in the present project. There is constant temptation to the pessimist to give the people a few disagreeable thrills.

Again and again have these reports been denied on the highest authority. They are raked up and sprung again. So they will be after this visit of Mr. Taft. But the majority in this country will not believe the tales of disaster. Too many have confidence in American engineering ability; too many have confidence in the next president. Only a few who think they are friends of the transcontinental railroads believe the canal will fail.

A Possible Commission.

"The American Protective Tariff league wants no tariff commission. President-elect Taft thinks one would be a good idea. The differentiation of his position from that of the extreme protectionists is daily becoming more and more manifest."—Boston Transcript.

Mr. Taft favors a permanent tariff commission to assist rate fixing, not to fix rates or to encroach on the constitutional powers of congress.

However, President Roosevelt was fighting "privilege" long before Senator Tillman, Representative Perkins and Willett arose to a question of privilege.

INDICTMENTS FOR LIBEL

THEY ARE RETURNED AGAINST NEWSPAPER MEN.

Proprietors and Editors of New York World and the Indianapolis News are Indicted.

Washington, D. C.—Bench warrants were issued late yesterday for the arrest of Joseph Pulitzer, Caleb M. Van Hamm and Robert H. Lyman of New York, proprietor and editors of the New York World; and for Delavan Smith and Charles R. Williams, owners of the Indianapolis News, for criminal libel in connection with the publication in those newspapers of charges of irregularities in the purchase by the United States government of the Panama canal property from the French owners.

The indictments on which the warrants were based were returned by the United States grand jury sitting in this city and the warrants were issued later by the clerk of criminal court No. 1. The warrants are directed against all five of the natural defendants of the two newspapers. The summons requires the corporate defendant (the Press Publishing Company of New York) to appear in court forthwith to answer the indictment.

Famous Men Named as Villified.

Theodore Roosevelt, William H. Taft, Elihu Root, J. Pierpont Morgan, Charles P. Taft, Douglas Robinson and William Nelson Cromwell are named in the indictments as the persons alleged to have been villified by the stories appearing in the two newspapers.

NEW HONOR FOR JUDGE TAFT

He Is Made a Mason "at Sight," Because of Great Achievements.

Cincinnati, O.—President-elect William Howard Taft was made a Mason "at sight" in the Scottish Rite cathedral this afternoon, when a large and distinguished body of leaders of the order crowded that building. Grand Master Charles S. Hoskinson, who alone under the constitution of the Ohio grand lodge has the authority, conferred the honor, which is likened to the ancient honor of knighthood on the field of battle, being an honor conferred for great achievements.

Masons of High Degree Attend.

Col. William B. Melish, Past Grand Master Levi C. Goodell and Grand Lodge Secretary Jacob H. Bromwell, the committee in charge of the arrangements, completed all the details before the arrival of the grand master, who formally put his approval on their acts. Among the prominent Masons who accepted the invitation to be present were Grand High Priest of the United States Joseph Dyas of the Royal Arch Masons of Illinois, Grand Master Herbert Montague of Michigan, Grand Master Joseph L. Davenport of South Dakota and Past Master A. B. McGaffey of Colorado, representing the grand lodge of that state.

The formal ceremony was followed by the exemplification of the Master's degree by Kilwinning lodge, of which Judge Taft's father and brother were members, and with which he will affiliate. A grand ball and reception was given by the Hanselman Commandery, Knights Templar, at which the president-elect was the guest of honor and was received under an arch of steel, an honor only conferred on high dignitaries of the state and nation.

DEATH OF A NOTED REDSKIN

Geronimo, the Apache Chief, Passes Away at Fort Sill, Okla.—Was 86 Years of Age.

Lawton, Okla. — Geronimo, the noted Indian chief, died yesterday at Fort Sill, where he had been a prisoner of war for a number of years. He was 86 years old.

It is a curious coincidence that news of Geronimo's death was sent out from Lawton, which was named after the late Maj. Gen. Henry F. Lawton, who, as a lieutenant in Gen. Miles' command, led the 3,000-mile chase that resulted in the Apache chief's surrender. The chase was begun in January, 1885, but the capture of Geronimo and his band was not made until nearly two years later.

It was declared at the time of his capture that he had more murders to his credit than any living Indian. He volunteered to head a band of Apache scouts during the Spanish American war, but his offer was declined. However, he was allowed to attend the St. Louis exposition, and his last public appearance was at President Roosevelt's inauguration, when he rode in the parade with five other Indian chiefs.

Congress.

Washington.—On the 17th the senate passed the naval appropriation bill, carrying $136,000,000. The house debated the penal code bill.

Song Writer Suicided.

New York City.—Just after having finished two verses of a song he was writing, Edward Gardenier, 47 years of age, a song writer, killed himself at his home in Brooklyn by cutting his throat.

Extra Session to Convene March 15.

Washington, D. C. — The extra session of congress will be convened on March 15. This date was definitely settled yesterday and President-elect Taft authorized the announcement.

GREAT FLEET IN HOME PORT AGAIN

AMERICAN SHIPS DROP THEIR ANCHORS AT HAMPTON ROADS.

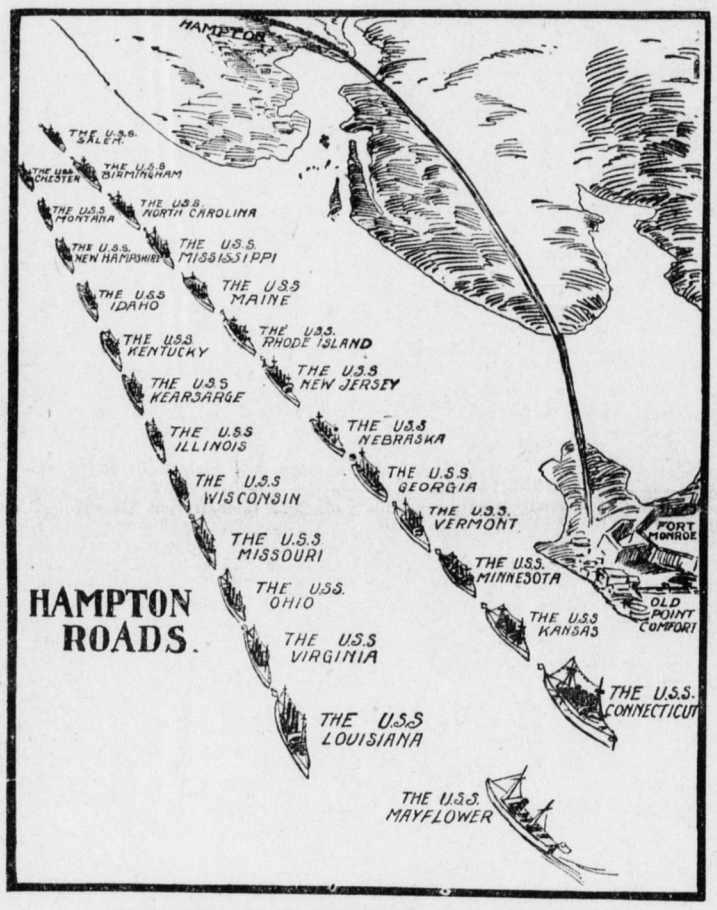
VESSELS IN FINE CONDITION

Long Voyage Has Demonstrated the Marvelous Efficiency of the American Navy—Foreign Countries Impressed as Never Befcre—Desertions Reported as Surprisingly Few—President Roosevelt Reviews Armada from the Mayflower.

Hampton Roads, Va., Feb. 22.—The most stupendous task of naval history was completed when President Roosevelt reviewed the fleet of 16 battleships as they filed into Hampton Roads to drop anchor at the port from which they sailed one year and two months before.

The homecoming was much the same as the departure. The ships were the same, with the exception of the Nebraska and Wisconsin, which took the place of the Maine and Alabama. The flag of Rear-Admiral Sperry flew from the Connecticut, Rear-Admiral Evans, Rear-Admiral Emory and Rear-Admiral Thomas, who were successively in command, having been placed on the retired list.

Crowding the piers the same wives and sweethearts gathered to welcome those to whom they waved their farewells from the same spot over a year ago. And with the rattle of chains and the splash of anchors, as the great ships wheeled into their berths, the journey of 42,227 miles—not including the side trips in the Mediterranean and other waters—from zone to zone, over the world's oceans and through foreign seas, was at an end.



ALIGNMENT OF WARSHIPS AT HAMPTON ROADS.

Marks Epoch in History.

The event marks an epoch in the naval and diplomatic history of the United States. As a mere physical achievement it is a thing of enormous proportions. As a test of naval efficiency it has shown the sailing value of the fleet and demonstrated to many peoples the power of the United States and its equipment for war. It has been a sort of gymnastic exercise with the big stick. It has given the navy department the results of an experience that will be invaluable in the upbuilding of future fleets and brought out defects that must be overcome. As a diplomatic messenger it has dissipated international misunderstandings and brought closer in friendly relations the United States and many of the world's countries.

The successful completion of the cruise without noteworthy accident or untoward incident, from either a naval or political point of view, is regarded by all nations as history making from several points of view. Never before has any battle command made such a long, continuous voyage. Never before has any battle command circumnavigated the globe, whether in one or separate voyages. Never before has any fleet or armada of any of the countries of the world visited so many ports, so many countries, under so many flags. And never was any naval command received with such wide and universal acclaim and enthusiasm of friendly feeling and spirit of welcome as marked the progress of the American battle fleet at every one of its twoscore or more stops on the cruise around the world.

Few Desertions Reported.

A remarkable feature of the cruise has been the excellent discipline. While there have been a few desertions, the number has been far less in proportion than it usually is in home ports. The extent of the drinking on the part of the men and officers at receptions and while on liberty in strange and peculiarly interesting places has been far less than was expected.

From the point of view of the trained mariner, bringing a ship around the world is no extraordinary task. But bringing 16 battleships, with 15,000 men, around the world is a most gigantic naval undertaking. Unlike the merchant ships, they are things of massive and intricate mechanism. They moved in battle formation, maneuvering at sea, to simulate, as far as possible, war conditions. At two stops in their journey, Magdalena bay and the Philippines, the great batteries were brought into play for target practice, without preparation, to prove the fitness of the ships for fighting at the end of a long cruise.

Many Countries Visited.

The fleet visited 20 countries and anchored in 26 foreign ports. The 16 ships passed through the Straits of Magellan, made the journey through the Suez canal without mishap and coaled at Port Said in record time to be off to help the Italian earthquake sufferers, all without mishap. Two passed through the Dardanelles, the first foreign warships to do so without grave conferences between the vigilant powers, to pick up the young Turkish officers who were to come to the United States. Two saluted the new sultan of Morocco. One division dropped anchor at Amoy to do honor to China. The whole fleet flew their colors in the ports of Japan. The flags of nearly all the world were unfurled in welcome to them.

To drive the ships 410,000 tons of coal were used. Practically all of this came from America, in order that there be no variations in quality which would interfere with the elaborate steaming tests to determine the maximum power to be obtained from the quantity of fuel consumed. In this respect alone the experience gained is invaluable. Nearly 100,000 gallons of oil were consumed in lubricating the engines and machinery.

All Nations Impressed.

It is as a naval test that the cruise of the fleet takes rank as the most interesting and greatest achievement of modern times. Naval experts of foreign nations waited with cynical patience for the fleet to arrive in Magdalena bay, battered and disabled after the first leg of the rigorous journey. When the ships went through target practice without any preparation they hastened to report to their governments. Later, when the same ships continued on their way around the world and did the same thing at Manila bay, the fighting efficiency of the American navy was unquestioned.

Foreign naval experts also waited confidently until the ships should reach California, to see the bluejackets desert in shoals as soon as they set foot on their own soil again. On the contrary the men kept to their posts more faithfully than even the department itself anticipated. This is the one problem of the American navy that has been a source of constant difficulty. Re-enlistments become more common than before and for the men who left the fleet after the long cruise around South America there were more men to take the places when they were ready to leave San Francisco.

But there were some things, some very simple things, brought out by the fleet's voyage which seem to have escaped the critics of the navy. If naval operations are to be carried by the United States at long range, and that will probably be the case, so far as the Pacific is concerned, there must be colliers to fill the bunkers of the battleships, supply ships to fill the store rooms, and ammunition ships to fill the magazines. In their last reports the chief of the bureau of ordnance said that a navy without ammunition was helpless, the chief of the bureau of supplies and accounts said that a navy without food for the men was helpless. The colliers are being built now and it is only a matter of time before each of the bureau chiefs will get what he wants.

A CONFERENCE OF ALL THE NATIONS

TO CONSIDER CONSERVATION OF NATURAL RESOURCES IS ADVOCATED BY ROOSEVELT.

IN A SPEECH TO DELEGATES

Representatives of the United States, Canada and Mexico Meet at the White House to Consider a Momentous Question.

Washington, D. C.—Conservation co-operation of world-wide scope was the keynote of an address of President Roosevelt made at the White House yesterday before the delegates in attendance upon the North American conservation conference. This sentiment, which was first voiced by the president, gathered considerable momentum during the day's proceedings and was reflected in addresses of those who participated.

Characterizing the movement as of the "utmost importance to the world at large," President Roosevelt impressed the representatives of this government, Canada and Mexico with the momentous possibilities of the work which has brought about this assemblage. It was the sentiment of the conference that although President Roosevelt, who took the lead in the conservation movement is now on the eve of retiring from office, the idea of international conservation would continue to grow and finally reach an ultimate conclusion in legislation.

Roosevelt Wants Universal Conference

President Roosevelt expressed the hope to Secretary of State Bacon that a universal conservation congress, in which all nations shall be invited to participate, should become a reality in the not distant future. Secretary Bacon and Chief Forester Pinchot and other government officials interested in the problem of the conservation of the world's natural resources also entertain a similar hope, and it is not unlikely that the president may take steps to bring about such a meeting.

As showing the necessity for a universal congress to deal with their natural resources, officials call attention to a report which has just been received by the state department from Consul General Wynne of London, relative to the royal commission appointed to inquire into the question of afforestation in the United Kingdom. Experts examined by this commission with reference to the future scarcity of timber, stated that in less than 30 years there would be no timber available unless the different countries of the world set about replanting immediately, and that if every country should take it up now the regeneration would not be half fast enough to keep pace with the consumption.

Permanent organization of the North American conservation conference was perfected at the first regular session with the selection of Gifford Pinchot, a member of the American delegation, as chairman, no other name being presented.

FIVE DOLLARS AND A KISS

All that a Kansas City Woman Got Out of $700 that She Gave a Heartless "Masher."

Kansas City, Mo.—Charles E. Nord, who has attained much notoriety because of the numerous love letters found in his trunk from women all over the United States, is held for trial here on a charge of obtaining money on false pretenses. Five dollars and a kiss are all the return that the prosecuting witness, Mrs. Carrie A. Hamilton, of this city, testified that she received for some $700 which she had given Nord.

"I had only 35 cents in the world when he left me," said Mrs. Hamilton.

Many of the hundreds of love letters received by Nord show that their authors had supplied him with funds. Mrs. Hamilton said that Nord traded her millinery store for a farm in Arkansas, but did not give her any of the proceeds. Nord's defense was that the money was given him merely as a mark of affection.

Poisoned Sausage Killed Three People

Memphis, Tenn.—Three persons are dead and five others are seriously ill, as a result of eating sausage supposed to have been poisoned. The dead: Mrs. Mary Priora, Mrs. Mary Cassini, Miss Mamie Cassini.

Congress.

Washington.—On the 18th the post-office appropriations bill was passed by the senate. The house passed the bill codifying and amending the penal laws of the United States.

Farmer Killed Two Women.

Boscobel, Wis.—John McDonald, aged 25 years, a farmer living near Gays Mills, shot and killed his sweetheart, Nancy Lenox, and her mother at their home. McDonald was taken to Prairie du Chien to avoid lynching.

Lincoln's Head to Appear on Pennies.

Washington, D. C.—Abraham Lincoln's head is to appear on new one cent pieces which will appear in about a month. President Roosevelt has approved the plan.

STEEL PRICES TO BE CUT

LEADING PRODUCER DECLARES AN "OPEN" MARKET.

This Action Is the Result of Prices Being Reduced by the Smaller Concerns.

New York City.—An "open" market in the iron and steel trade that manufacturers believe will lead to stimulation of the industry was created late yesterday when ex-Judge Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the directorate of the United States Steel Corporation, made an official announcement that "the leading manufacturers of iron and steel have determined to protect their customers and, for the present, sell at such modified prices as may be necessary in order to retain their fair share of the business." The prices which may be determined upon will be given by the manufacturers to their customers direct.

The action of the leading manufacturers in effecting an open market followed a series of conferences that had been held here for three days by Judge Gary and the heads of the various subsidiary companies of the Steel Corporation, together with officials of other steel manufacturing companies.

Small Concerns Have Cut Prices.

Judge Gary in the official statement says that the smaller manufacturing concerns, for one cause or another, particularly since the tariff agitation, have become more or less excited and demoralized, and have been selling their products below those prices generally maintained, and this led to unreasonable price cutting by certain manufacturers, who though opposed to a change felt the necessity of protecting their customers.

THE SNELL WILL IS UPHELD

The Court Finds No Evidence that the Old Millionaire was Insane When He Made the Will.

Springfield, Ill.—A decision handed down by the state supreme court yesterday sustains the will of the late "Tom" Snell, a Clinton millionaire, and reverses the decision of the DeWitt county circuit court which broke the will. The decision bars the way against further attempts to break the testament, which gave away several million dollars. Richard Snell, the son, was cut off with $50 and Mabel Snell McNamara of Kansas City, a niece, got a life annuity.

The main point urged by those who sought to break the will was that Snell was of unsound mind and had been unduly influenced in making his will. Immoral letters were produced as evidence showing his profligate career during his last years. There is not an item of evidence, says the supreme court, on which to base the verdict that he was insane when he made the will or the codicil. It finds no evidence that Mabel McNamara in any way unlawfully influenced the testator.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF TRADE

Improvement in Business Activity Is Very Slow, Especially in Iron, Copper and Coal.

New York City.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

Improvement in the structure of business is much more pronounced than improvement in the activity of business. While financial and political developments, both in Europe and the United States are distinctly better, the progress toward the eagerly expected revival of trade is slow and, especially in the iron, copper and coal trade, is disappointing. The strength of the situation still lies in the fact that stocks are in no extended state.

Cotton goods are firm. Woolen goods are chiefly active in the better grades of fancy worsteds. Domestic hides are weaker and the shoe trade is very dull. It is noteworthy that trade reports are generally more favorable from western centers than in the eastern cities.

Bartender Killed a Police Sergeant.

New York City.—Sergeant John B. Goldhammer was shot dead by Edward J. Byrnes, a bartender, in the latter's apartment in a First avenue tenement yesterday. Byrnes declares that Goldhammer insisted on forcing his way into his apartment, and that he shot him supposing that he was a burglar. Deputy Commissioner Hanson said that although Goldhammer suspected Byrnes of being connected with policy, he went to arrest him concerning a robbery from an express company.

If you are a business man, did you ever think of the field of opportunity that advertising opens to you? There is almost no limit to the possibilities of your business if you study how to turn trade into your store. If you are not getting your share of the business of your community there's a reason. People go where they are attracted—where they know what they can get and how much it is sold for. If you make direct statements in your advertising see to it that you are able to fulfill every promise you make. You will add to your business reputation and hold your customers. It will not cost as much to run your ad in this paper as you think. It is the persistent advertiser who gets there. Have something in the paper every issue, no matter how small. We will be pleased to quote you our advertising rates, particularly on the year's business.

MAKE YOUR APPEAL

to the public through the columns of this paper. With every issue it carries its message into the homes and lives of the people. Your competitor has his store news in this issue. Why don't you have yours? Don't blame the people for flocking to his store. They know what he has.

The Home Paper Gives you the reading matter in which you have the greatest interest—the home news. Its every issue will prove a welcome visitor to every member of the family. It should head your list of newspaper and periodical subscriptions.

Enlarging Your Business

If you are in business and you want to make more money you will read every word we have to say. Are you spending your money for advertising in haphazard fashion as if intended for charity, or do you advertise for direct results?

Did you ever stop to think how your advertising can be made a source of profit to you, and how its value can be measured in dollars and cents. If you have not, you are throwing money away.

Advertising is a modern business necessity, but must be conducted on business principles. If you are not satisfied with your advertising you should set aside a certain amount of money to be spent annually, and then carefully note the effect it has in increasing your volume of business; whether a 10, 20 or 30 per cent increase. If you watch this gain from year to you will become intensely interested in your advertising, and how you can make it enlarge your business.

If you try this method we believe you will not want to let a single issue of this paper go to press without something from your store.

We will be pleased to have you call on us, and we will take pleasure in explaining our annual contract for so many inches, and how it can be used in whatever amount that seems necessary to you.

If you can sell goods over the counter we can also show you why this paper will best serve your interests when you want to reach the people of this community.

JOB PRINTING We can do the finest class of printing, and we can do that class just a little cheaper than the other fellow. Wedding invitations, letter heads, bill heads, sale bills, statements, dodgers, cards, etc., all receive the same careful treatment—just a little better than seems necessary. Prompt delivery always.

WOMEN'S WOES.

Emporium Women are Finding Relief At Last.

It does seem that women have more than a fair share of the aches and pains that afflict humanity; they must "keep up," must attend to duties in spite of constantly aching backs, or headaches, dizzy spells, bearing-down pains; they must stoop over, when to stoop means torture. They must walk and bend and work with racking pains and many aches from kidney ills. Kidneys cause more suffering than any other organ of the body. Keep the kidneys well and health is easily maintained. Read of a remedy for kidney only that helps and cures the kidneys and is endorsed by people you know.

Mrs. Frank Mundy, W. Fourth St., Emporium, Pa., says: "Since using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured from L. Taggart's Drug store, I am feeling much better. My kidneys were very weak, the secretions passing too frequently and I suffered from a dull, nagging backache and a splitting headache. Sharp pains would dart through the small of my back and at times my feet and hands would swell. Doan's Kidney Pills regulated the secretions and drove away the pains and aches in my back and head. I cheerfully recommend this remedy."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

ONE MILLION DOLLARS FOR A GOOD STOMACH.

This Offer Should be A Warning To Every Man And Woman.

The newspapers and medical journals recently have had much to say relative to a famous millionaires' offer of a million dollars for a new stomach.

This great multi-millionaire was too busy to worry about the condition of his stomach. He allowed his dyspepsia to run from bad to worse until in the end it became incurable.

His misfortune serves as a warning to others.

Everyone who suffers with dyspepsia for a few years will give everything he owns for a new stomach.

Dyspepsia is caused by an abnormal state of the gastric juices. There is one element missing. The absence of this destroys the function of the gastric fluids. They lose their power to digest food.

We are now able to supply the missing elements—to restore to the gastric juices their digestive power, and to make the stomach strong and well.

We know that Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets will positively and permanently cure disordered stomachs, indigestion and dyspepsia.

We want you to try them and will return your money if you are not more than satisfied with the result.

Earley, No. 121 Center Street, to the property of O. M. McCarthy at the Corner of Kearsarge street and Metoxet Avenue. He will be in a ward now where he can be elected to the borough coucil if he should take a notion to run again. Mr. Davison is a fine man and very popular among those who know him in Ridgway. Considering the fact that he is a new man in town, he ran remarkably well at the late election, for the tidal wave was against the whole ticket—not because it lacked votes at all, but because the democrats were able to find and deliver a few more votes than the Republicans. These swings of the political pendulum will come at intervals in spite of all that can be done.—Ridgway Daily Record.

Fine for Kidneys.

Here is a simple home-made mixture as given by an eminent authority on Kidney diseases, who makes the statement that it will relieve almost any case of Kidney trouble if taken before the stage of Bright's disease. He states that such symptoms as lame back, pain in the side, frequent desire to urinate, especially at night; painful and discolored urination, are readily overcome. Here is the recipe. Try it.

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

These ingredients are all harmless and easily mixed at home by shaking well in a bottle. This mixture has a pecular healing and soothing effect upon the entire Kidney and Urinary structure, and often overcomes the worst forms of Rheumatism in just a little while. This mixture is said to move all blood disorders and cure Rheumatism by forcing the Kidneys to filter and strain from the blood and system all uric acid and foul, decomcomposed waste matter, which cause these afflictions. Try it if you aren't well. Save the prescription.

Deduction Mother Must Have Found Somewhat Hard to Combat.

Miss Marjorie, aged five years, is one of those bright children who make the lives of their parents and teachers a burden. Quite recently she paid her first visit to a kindergarten. Upon her return home she grew enthusiastic, begging her mother to allow her to attend the school regularly.

"It was so very nice!" she declared sweetly. "And the teacher, Miss Lee, 's so very nice, too! She told me if I was a good little girl I would grow up into a pretty lady, but if I was naughty I would grow up an ugly one!"

"That is quite true, dear," her mother answered with a smile.

Silently Miss Marjorie regarded the fire of pine logs. Presently she burst out: "Then what a naughty, naughty little girl Miss Lee must have been.' —The Bohemian.

SERIAL STORY

THE MAKER OF MOONS

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

Illustrations by J. J. Sheridan

(Copyright, G. P. Putnam's Sons.)

SYNOPSIS.

The story opens in New York, Roy Cardenhue, the story-teller, inspecting a queer reptile owned by George Godfrey of Tiffany's. Roy and Barris and Pierpont, two friends, depart on a hunting trip to Cardinal Woods, a rather obscure locality. Barris revealed the fact that he had joined the secret service for the purpose of running down a gang of gold makers. Prof. LaGrange, on discovering the gang's formula, had been mysteriously killed. Barris received a telegram of instructions. He and Pierpont set out to locate the gold making gang. A valet reported seeing a queer Chinaman in the supposedly untenanted woods. Roy went hunting. He fell asleep in a dell. On awakening he beheld a beautiful girl at a small lake. A birthmark, resembling a dragon's claw, on Roy's forehead had a mysterious effect upon the girl, who said her name was Ysonde. Suddenly she disappeared. Fleeing in terror Roy beheld a horrible Chinese visage peering at him from the woods. Barris and Pierpont returned. Barris exhibited a reptile, like that owned by Godfrey. A ball of supposed gold, he held, suddenly became alive.

"And who the devil is Yue-Laou?" I said, crossly.

"You-Laou—the Moon Maker, Dzil-Nbu of the Kuen-Yuin; it's Chinese mythology, but it is believed that Yue-Laou has returned to rule the Kuen-Yuin—"

"The conversation," interrupted Pierpont, "smacks of peacock feathers and yellow-jackets. The chicken-pox has left its card on Roy, and Barris is guying us. Come on, you fellows, and make your call on the dream-lady. Barris, I hear galloping; here come your men."

Two mud-splashed riders clattered up to the porch and dismounted at a motion from Barris. I noticed that both of them carried repeating rifles and heavy Colt's revolvers.

The followed Barris, deferentially, into the dining-room, and presently we heard the tinkle of plates and bottles and the low hum of Barris' musical voice.

Half an hour later they came out again, saluted Pierpont and me, and galloped away in the direction of the Canadian frontier. Ten minutes passed, and, as Barris did not appear, we rose and went into the house, to find him. He was sitting silently before the table, watching the small golden globe, now glowing with scarlet and orange fire, brilliant as a live coal. Howlett, mouth ajar and eyes starting from the sockets, stood petrified behind him.

"Are you coming?" asked Pierpont, a little startled. Barris did not answer. The globe slowly turned to pale gold again—but the face that Barris raised to ours was white as a sheet. Then he stood up and smiled, with an effort which was painful to us all.

"Give me a pencil and a bit of paper," he said.

Howlett brought it. Barris went to the window and wrote rapidly. He folded the paper, placed it in the top drawer of his desk, locked the drawer, handed me the key, and motioned us to precede him.

When again we stood under the maples, he turned to me with an impenetrable expression. "You will know when to use the key," he said. "Come, Pierpont, we must try to find Roy's fountain."

CHAPTER VI.

At two o'clock that afternoon, at Barris' suggestion, we gave up the search for the fountain in the glade and cut across the forest to the spinney where David and Howlett were waiting with our guns and the three dogs.

Pierpont guyed me unmercifully about the "dream-lady," as he called her, and, but for the significant coincidence of Ysonde's and Barris' questions concerning the white scar on my forehead, I should long ago have been perfectly persuaded that I had dreamed the whole thing. As it was, I had no explanation to offer. We had not been able to find the glade although 50 times I came to landmarks which convinced me that we were just about to enter it. Barris was quiet, scarcely uttering a word to either of us during the entire search. I had never before seen him depressed in spirits. However, when we came in sight of the spinney where a cold bit of grouse and a bottle of Burgundy awaited each, Barris seemed to recover his habitual good humor.

"Here's to the dream-lady!" said Pierpont, raising his glass and standing up.

I did not like it. Even if she was only a dream, it irritated me to hear Pierpont's mocking voice. Perhaps Barris understood—I don't know, but he bade Pierpont drink his wine without further noise, and that young man obeyed with a childish confidence which almost made Barris smile.

"What about the snipe, David," I asked; "the meadows should be in good condition."

"There is not a snipe on the meadows, sir," said David, solemnly.

"Impossible," exclaimed Barris, "they can't have left."

"They have, sir," said David, in a sepulchral voice, which I hardly recognized.

We all three looked at the old man curiously, waiting for his explanation of this disappointing but sensational report.

David looked at Howlett and Howlett examined the sky.

"I was going," began the old man, with his eyes fastened on Howlett, "I was going along by the spinney with the dogs when Howlett came walkin' very fast toward me. I heard a noise in the covert and I seen—in fact," continued David, "I may say he was runnin'. Was you runnin', Howlett?"

Howlett said "Yes," with a decorous cough.

"I beg pardon," said David, "but I'd rather Howlett told the rest. He saw things which I did not."

"Go on, Howley," commanded Pierpont, much interested.

Howlett coughed again behind his large red hand.

"What David say is true," he began; "I h'observed the dogs at a distance 'ow they was a workin', sir, and David stood a lightin' of 's pipe be'ind the spotted beech when I see a 'ead pop up in the covert 'oldin' a stick like 'e was 'haimin' at the dogs, sir—"

"A head holding a stick?" said Pierpont, severely.

"The 'ead 'nd 'ands, sir," explained Howlett, "'ands that 'eld a painted stick—like that, sir. 'Owlett, thinks I to meself, this 'ere 's queer, so I jumps in an' runs, but the beggar 'e seen me an' w'en I comes alongside of David, 'e was gone. ''Ello, 'Owlett,' sez David, 'what the 'ell'—I beg pardon, sir—'ow did you come 'ere,' sez 'e very loud. 'Run!' sez I, 'the Chinaman is harryin' the dawgs!' 'For Gawd's sake, wot Chinaman?' sez David, h'aimin' 'is gun at every bush. Then I thinks I see 'im an' we run an' run, the dawgs a boundin' close to heel, sir, but we don't see no Chinaman."

"I'll tell the rest," said David, as Howlett coughed and stepped in a modest corner behind the dogs.

"Go on," said Barris, in a strange voice.

"Well, sir, when Howlett and I stopped chasin', we was on the cliff overlooking the south meadow. I noticed that there was hundreds of birds there, mostly yellow-legs and plover, and Howlett seen them, too. Then before I could say a word to Howlett, something out in the lake gave a splash as if the whole cliff had fallen into the water. I was that scared that I jumped straight into the bush and Howlett he sat down quick, and all those snipe wheeled up—there was hundreds—all a squealin' with fright, and the woodduck came howlin' over the meadows as if the old Nick was behind."

"Barris Looked at His Watch and Closed It with a Snap."

David paused and glanced meditatively at the dogs.

"Go on," said Barris in the same strained voice.

"Nothing more, sir. The snipe did not come back."

"But that splash in the lake?"

"I don't know what it was, sir."

"A salmon? A salmon couldn't have frightened the duck and the snipe that way?"

"No—oh, no, sir. If 50 salmon had jumped they couldn't have made that splash. Couldn't they, Howlett?"

"No 'ow," said Howlett.

"Roy," said Barris at length, "what David tells us settles the snipe shooting for to-day. I am going to take Pirepont up to the house. Howlett and David will follow with the dogs—I have something to say to them. If you care to come, come along; if not, go and shoot a brace of grouse for dinner and be back by eight if you want to see what Pierpont and I discovered last night."

David whistled Gamin and Mioche to heel and followed Howlett and his hamper toward the house. I called Voyou to my side, picked up my gun and turned to Barris.

"I will be back by eight," I said; "you are expecting to catch one of the goldmakers, are you not?"

"Yes," said Barris, listlessly.

Pierpont began to speak about the Chinaman, but Barris motioned him to follow, and nodding to me, took the path that Howlett and David had followed toward the house. When they disappeared I tucked my gun under my arm and turned sharply into the forest, Voyou trotting close to my heels.

In spite of myself the continued apparition of the Chinaman made me nervous. If he troubled me again I had fully decided to get the drop on him and find out what he was doing in the Cardinal Woods. If he could give no satisfactory account of himself I would march him in to Barris as a gold-making suspect—I would march him in, anyway, I thought, and rid the forest of his ugly face. I wondered what it was that David had heard in the lake. It must have been a big fish, a salmon, I thought; probably David's and Howlett's nerves were overwrought after their Celestial chase.

A whine from the dog broke the thread of my meditation and I raised my head. Then I stopped short in my tracks.

The lost glade lay straight before me.

Already the dog had bounded into it, across the velvet turf to the carved stone where a slim figure sat. I saw my dog lay his silky head lovingly against her silken kirtle; I saw her face bend above him, and I caught my breath and slowly entered the sun-lit glade.

Half timidly she held out one white hand.

"Now that you have come," she said, "I can show some more of my work. I told you that I could do other things besides those dragon-flies and moths carved here in stone. Why do you stare at me so? Are you ill?"

"Ysonde," I stammered.

"Yes," she said, with a faint color under her eyes.

"I—I never expected to see you again," I blurted out, "—you—I—I—thought I had dreamed—"

"Dreamed of me? Perhaps you did. Is that strange?"

"Strange? N—no—but—where did you go when—when we were leaning over the fountain together? I saw your face—your face reflected beside mine and then—then suddenly I saw the blue sky and only a star twinkling."

"It was because you fell asleep," she said, "was it not?"

"I—asleep?"

"You slept—I thought you were very tired and I went back—"

"Back?—where?"

"Back to my home where I carve my beautiful images; see, here is one I brought to show you to-day."

I took the sculptured creature that she held toward me, a massive lizard with frail claw-spread wings of gold so thin that the sunlight burned through and fell on the ground in flaming gilded patches.

"Good heavens!" I exclaimed, "this is astounding! Where did you learn to do such work? Ysonde, such a thing is beyond price!"

"Oh, I hope so," she said, earnestly, "I can't bear to sell my work, but my stepfather takes it and sends it away. This is the second thing I have done, and yesterday he said I must give it to him. I suppose he is poor."

"I don't see how he can be poor if he gives you gold to model in," I said, astonished.

"Gold!" she exclaimed, "gold! He has a room full of gold! He makes it."

I sat down on the turf at her feet completely unnerved.

"Why do you look at me so?" she asked, a little troubled.

"Where does your stepfather live?" I said at last.

"Here."

"Here!"

"In the woods near the lake. You could never find our house."

"A house!"

"Of course. Did you think I lived in a tree? How silly. I live with my stepfather in a beautiful house—a small house, but very beautiful. He makes his gold there, but the men who carry it away never come to the house, for they don't know where it is, and if they did they could not get in. My stepfather carries the gold in lumps to a canvas satchel. When the satchel is full he takes it out into the woods where the men live, and I don't know what they do with it. I wish he could sell the gold and become rich, for then I could go back to Yian where all the gardens are sweet and the river flows under the thousand bridges."

LEAD IN WATER TURBINE WORK.

Swiss the First to Develop Long Distance Electrical Power.

Switzerland produces no coal and no iron. In the manufacture of machinery the raw material is nearly all brought from Germany, which also supplies the greater part of the coal. The tools used in the machine shops, however, are for the most part, made in America.

The country has an enormous amount of water power, however, and in its development the Swiss have gained a prominence in the water turbine work throughout the world, one firm being called upon to design the original water turbine which was installed at Niagara falls. Hand-in-hand with this turbine development, practically the superlative in electrical engineering has been attained, and today Swiss machinery is being sent to all parts of the world.

The Swiss are able to maintain their position only through their superior technical knowledge, for which they are indebted to their engineering institutions. In their vast experience they lay claim to being the first to develop the transmission of electrical power over long distances, and it is believed that before long all the Swiss state railways will be working under electrical power.

HORTICULTURE

PLANNING A FAMILY ORCHARD.

What One Farmer Planted for His Own Needs.

In arranging an orchard for the use of the family, there are several things to consider. It must be located convenient to the dwelling house, to save time and labor in gathering small quantities of fruit. It should, if possible, be located on land that will afford the best natural advantages, in the way of type of soil, and exposure to the sun, etc., and the orchard should be so arranged that the fruit nearest the house will commence to fruit first in the season.

A variety of fruits should be selected to furnish a supply of fresh fruit throughout the entire season, and at the same time furnish enough of late fruit to store for the winter; therefore, it is necessary to plant trees from the earliest to the latest fruiting.

Following I give a sample of my own fruit orchard for family use which I think after several years of use to be convenient and profitable, writes R. B. Rushing, in Farmers' Voice. I have a piece of land containing 1½ acres, lying south of my dwelling house, with a southeastern gradual exposure, of soil specially adapted to the growing of fruits.

This plat is 20 rods long, by 12 rods wide. I have 91 cherry trees one rod apart each way.

In the center of the orchard, south of the cherry trees, I have 36 grape vines, rows running east and west four hills long. They are grown by the row method, as I think I grow more that way than by the hill method.

Just east of the grape vines I have 20 peach trees, which consist of both early and late peaches.

West and south of the grape vines and peach trees, I have 41 early and late apple trees, with the early nearest the house.

As to my reason for this arrangement, the first fruit ripe in the spring are the cherries. I have them so that wife will not have to go to the back of the field to get her supplies for the table and canning. And for the benefit of the reader, as I go along I will give a partial account of what this little plat of ground is bringing in dollars and cents beside supplying my family with plenty of good, fresh, wholesome fruits the year round.

My orchard is 12 years old, and not doing its best yet. For the last five years I have shipped, or sold, an average of 50 cases of cherries beside what we have used for canning, etc. The 50 cases each year have netted me $1.25 per case, which is $75 per year from the cherries alone, above what we used.

Having few early peaches I have sold none except to neighbors, of which I kept no record. But we have had an abundance of very excellent fruit ourselves. I should say that for the past five years I have sold as much as $10 per year.

We have had for six years all the grapes we wanted to use, and for the last four years I have sold an average of 1,000 pounds at two cents per pound, which is $20 per year, above family use.

The apples are just now beginning to do something good. I have been getting a small quantity for the last four years, but since they were seven years old they have supplied the table, plenty for winter, and an occasional treat for the neighbors.

In the last three years I have sold above what we used, an average of one bushel to the tree, at from 50 cents to one dollar per bushel or about $25 per year, for the last three years. From now on they will do much better.

As to profits, the total orchard has furnished plenty of fruit for our family, and an average of $130 for the last four years. Of course I laid out the use of the land practically for the first six or seven years, and was out some little expense of handling, but I think I received pay for all that from keeping poultry on this land.

PRUNING PEAR TREES.

Experiments to Prove the Value of Different Methods.

The following experiment in pruning Kieffer pear trees was made last season and will be repeated to determine the relative value of time when to prune, writes an Indiana farmer in Farmers' Review:

Experiment No. 1—One-half all new wood was cut back before any sign of the bud expanding in the spring.

Experiment No. 2—Same was done to other trees when buds were ready to open.

Experiment No. 3—When in full bloom and ready to drop the bloom other trees were cut back one-half.

Nothing further was done, the trees needing no pruning otherwise.

Now for results: they were just in the order as was the pruning. Those trees pruned early gave the best fruit this year and the wood growth was good. Those pruned second did not do as well as the preceding, neither in fruit nor wood. The third lot gave poor fruit and but little wood growth.

This is only one trial. There may have been other causes for this result, but we expect to continue the same process another season to determine the matter more fully. We will also try the same process on other varieties than Kieffer.

HEAD LETTUCE FROM HOTBEDS.

Now Is the Time to Begin to Plan for Early Vegetables.

Plants were started about March 1 in an ordinary hotbed and were well aired to get hardy plants. The hotbed into which they were transplanted was made the last week in March, making a bed of hot manure eight feet wide and 18 inches deep on top of the ground. Frames were made as for ordinary cold frames, except that they were deeper, 18 inches back and ten inches front.

These frames were set on the manure. After it had settled well and had been trampled evenly, five inches of rich soil was put in, which was covered with about one inch of rotted sheep manure and thoroughly mixed with the soil. The bed was then marked so plants would stand eight inches apart each way, putting in about 40 plants to the sash.

Our sashes are made three by six feet, using two by two-inch stuff, with a crossbar of the same in the middle. Common sheeting, costing eight cents per yard, was tacked onto this frame with large-headed tacks. Plants were set the last day of March, and it seemed as if to test the value of the plan a cold snap came; on the morning of April 2 the thermometer stood at 16 degrees above zero. Cabbage and cauliflower plants set in a well-protected cold frame were frozen badly, while this bed, with only a slight protection of wild hay, came through without a bit of frost.

The sashes were removed every day, unless it snowed or the thermometer stood below 40 degrees, but were covered every night when there was danger of frost, writes the correspondent in Orange Judd Farmer. A row of Scarlet Globe radishes was sown between each row and were sold at a good profit ten days before we could pull from outdoors. A few sashes were planted to Grand Rapids lettuce, which was ready to cut May 20, while plants set outdoors were not ready until two weeks later.

We began setting head lettuce June 1, which was 13 days earlier than from outdoors, where fine, large heads were set. The lettuce from the sashes brought us 60 cents per dozen wholesale and from seven to ten cents per head from the wagon. On our retail route it brought about two dollars per sash, beside the radishes, which brought one dollar per sash on an average.

April and May were cold and wet here, so that with an average season and by using large, strong plants, I think we could have had heads by May 20. Nearly every plant made a good, hard, well-developed head. The varieties were May King, Big Boston and Naumberger, a new variety which proved better than May King, both in the sashes and outside. It made a larger, more solid head that stood longer after it was ready to cut than May King, and just as early.

SPLIT TREES.

How They May Be Treated and Preserved.

A kind friend contributes a method for saving trees that split or threaten to split at crotches. The drawings show the idea clearly, says Farm Journal. Any blacksmith can make a brace of this kind, the desired length, at small expense. Bore a small hole, as indicated by the dotted line, insert the rod, tighten and adjust the attachments—and there you are! Surely valuable trees are worth this little attention when it is needed.

Plan of Saving Split Trees.

Castor Beans.

Castor beans are remarkably striking plants for the annual garden. They give a rugged tropical effect when planted in clumps or with rank growing annuals and perennials, such as cannas and elephants ear. They should occupy the center or back of the bed unless they are dwarf varieties. In a single season they often grow more than ten feet tall. For extra large plants the seeds should be sown in pots in a greenhouse, hotbed or window when tomato plants are started. But large plants will grow from seed sown in the open ground when the weather has become settled. A dry situation in deep and rich soil is best. Among the most striking varieties are Ricinus Zanzibariensis and R. Borbonlensis, which reach a height of 12 to 15 feet, and R. Cambodgensis, which grows only about six feet tall but has beautiful, bronzy foliage.

Low-Headed Trees.

Keep your trees headed down so that they will not reach up to the moon. We have seen old apple trees that were certainly 30 feet tall. It is as much as a man's life is worth to pick fruit on such trees.

IN AGONY WITH ECZEMA.

Whole Body a Mass of Raw, Bleeding, Torturing Humor—Hoped Death Would End Fearful Suffering.

In Despair; Cured by Cuticura.

"Words cannot describe the terrible eczema I suffered with. It broke out on my head and kept spreading until it covered my whole body. I was almost a solid mass of sores from head to foot. I looked more like a piece of raw beef than a human being. The pain and agony endured seemed more than I could bear. Blood and pus oozed from the great sore on my scalp, from under my finger nails, and nearly all over my body. My ears were so crusted and swollen I was afraid they would break off. Every hair in my head fell out. I could not sit down, for my clothes would stick to the raw and bleeding flesh, making me cry out from the pain. My family doctor did all he could, but I got worse and worse. My condition was awful. I did not think I could live, and wanted death to come and end my frightful sufferings.

"In this condition my mother-in-law begged me to try the Cuticura Remedies. I said I would, but had no hope of recovery. But oh, what blessed relief I experienced after applying Cuticura Ointment. It cooled the bleeding and itching flesh and brought me the first real sleep I had had in weeks. It was as grateful as ice to a burning tongue. I would bathe with warm water and Cuticura Soap, then apply the Ointment freely. I also took Cuticura Resolvent for the blood. In a short time the sores stopped running, the flesh began to heal, and I knew I was to get well again. Then the hair on my head began to grow, and in a short time I was completely cured. I wish I could tell everybody who has eczema to use Cuticura. Mrs. Wm. Hunt, 135 Thomas St., Newark, N. J., Sept. 28, 1908."

Overdoing It.

A young Englishman, after he had been in Devil's valley for a couple of months, began to grow thin. Wyoming cooking did not appeal to him. Besides his squeamish appetite there was another thing that the natives held against him—his outlandish custom of taking a bath every morning. One day his landlady was discussing him with a friend.

"I tell ye what, Sal," said the visitor, "he's jest a-wastin' away a-grievin' for some gal back east thar."

"Nothin' o' the kind," said the landlady, contemptuously. "You mark my words, now—that young feller he's jest a washin' hisself away."—Everybody's Magazine.

The Prince of Grumblers.

When Mr. Beeton asked if he did not find many unreasonable people among his summer boarders, Farmer Joy quickly assented.

"Lots an' lots are never satisfied anyway," he said. "No matter what's done for 'em, there'll always be something wrong somewheres.

"Now last summer," he went on, with a gleaming eye, "we had a man here that was so fond of grumblin' that one day he actually called for a toothpick after he'd had a glass of milk."—Youth's Companion.

George and His Wad in Demand.

"The young wife answered the 'phone.

"That's another call for George," she said to her mother. "Somebody wants him to come somewhere and play bridge. It's the third invitation he's had this evening."

"That would seem to indicate," said the mother, "that George is very popular."

The young wife sniffed.

"It unquestionably indicates," she said, "that George is an easy loser."

GOOD CHANGE

Coffee to Postum.

The large army of persons who have found relief from many chronic ailments by changing from coffee to Postum as a daily beverage, is growing each day.

It is only a simple question of trying it for oneself in order to know the joy of returning health as realized by an Ills. young lady. She writes:

"I had been a coffee drinker nearly all my life and it affected my stomach—caused insomnia and I was seldom without a headache. I had heard about Postum and how beneficial it was, so concluded to quit coffee and try it.

"I was delighted with the change. I can now sleep well and seldom ever have headache. My stomach has gotten strong and I can eat without suffering afterwards. I think my whole system greatly benefited by Postum.

"My brother also suffered from stomach trouble while he drank coffee, but now since using Postum he feels so much better he would not go back to coffee for anything."

MONEY MADE IN LIVE STOCK IN CENTRAL CANADA.

W. J. Henderson, visiting Seattle, writes the Canadian Government Agent at Spokane, Wash., and says:

"I have neighbors in Central Canada raising wheat, barley and oats for the past 20 years, and are now getting from the same land 20 to 30 bushels of wheat per acre, 40 to 60 bushels of oats.

"It was the first week of May when I got my tent pitched, but the farmers all around had finished putting in their crops, so I only got fifteen acres broke and seeded. They advised me as it was late not to put in much wheat, so I put in five acres of wheat and ten acres oats, one-half acre potatoes and vegetables. All kinds of vegetables grow well up there, sweet corn, tomatoes, onions, carrots, peas, beans, cabbage. My wheat yielded about 20 bushels per acre, for which I got 76 cents, others got 80 cents; oats threshed 35 bushels per acre, for which I got 35 cents per bushel. You see I was three weeks late in getting them in, still I was satisfied.

"From my observation, there is more money made in stock, such as cattle, horses and sheep, as prices are high for such, and it costs nothing to raise them, as horses live the year around out on the grass. In fact, farmers turn their work horses out for the winter, and they come in fresh and fat in the spring. Cattle live out seven or eight months. They mow the prairie grass and stack it for winter and give oat straw. My neighbors sold steers at $40 each, and any kind of a horse that can plow, from $150.00 up. I raised 60 chickens and 5 pigs, as pork, chickens, butter and eggs pay well and always a good market for anything a man raises, so I have every reason to be thankful, besides, at the end of three years I get my patent for homestead. I heard of no homestead selling for less than $2,000, so where under the sun could an old man or young man do better?"

A Dire Threat.

It is well known that certain vagabonds desire nothing better, especially when the cold weather comes on, than to be arrested and locked up, in order that they may be taken care of a while. One of this fraternity succeeded in getting himself arrested for vagrancy, and on the way to the lockup he was so much overjoyed by the prospect of not having to sleep in the open air that he behaved somewhat boisterously.

"Keep quiet!" threatened the policeman; "if you don't, I'll let you go!"—Exchange.

The Secret of Poverty.

Dr. Woods Hutchinson of New York unlocked the secret of general poverty in an address at the American Museum of Natural History in New York early this month, when he said: "What is killing the people of this city may be stated as overwork, underfeeding and overcrowding; and two of these may be included under the one word 'underpaid.' The message of the church and of medicine to-day to the community is not 'Give to the poor,' but 'Don't take so much away from them.'—The Public.

Placing Him.

"Papa," inquired little May, after Sunday school, "was George Washington an Israelite?"

CURE

Indigestion Ends.

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of a case of Indigestion or Dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach if you will occasionally take a little Dispepsin after eating.

Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes Belching Dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea. Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach). Billiousness Heartburn, Water brash, Pain in stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Dispepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. Each triangule will digest all the food you can eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour.

Get a large 50 cent case of Pape's Dispepsin from your druggist and start taking to-day and by to-morrow you will actually brag about your healthy, strong Stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle or impurity and Gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

Reason Enthroned.

Because meats are so tasty they are consumed in great excess. This leads to stomach trouble, billiousness and constipation. Revise your diet. let reason and not a pampered appetite control, then take a few doses of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets and you will soon be well again. Try it. For sale at Taggart's drug store. Samples free.

A Common Cold.

We claim that if catching cold could be avoided some of the most dangerous and fatal diseases would never be heard of. A cold often forms a culture bed for germs of infectious diseases. Consumption, pneumonia, diphtheria and scarlet fever, four of the most dangerous and fatal diseases, are of this class. The culture bed formed by the cold favors the development of the germs of these diseases. that would not otherwise find lodgment. There is little danger, however, of any of these diseases being contracted when a good expectorant cough medicine like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is used. It cleans out these culture beds that favor the development of the germs of these diseases. That is why this remedy has proved so universally successful in preventing pneumonia. It not only cures your cold quickly, but minimize the risk of contracting these dangerous diseases. For sale by Taggart.

Telegraphers to the front. Lumber township has paid a high tribute to the telegraph profession by electing four "Knights of the Key" to township offices as follows; Frank B. Hoag, Supervisor and School Director, E. D. Krape Auditor and G. L. Page and Thomas Eddy Justices of the Peace. These gentlemen are at the head of the list in their chosen profession and will serve the people in the same safe and considerate manner as they conduct the telegraph business. Having the custody and safety of the lives of the traveling public at all times during working hours in their hands it seems that honor and attention to duty have become second nature to them and the voters of Lumber township have chosen wisely and well. Succes to the jovial "brass pounders of Lumber."

Mrs. Geoge Hoehn, of St. Marys, mother of Mrs. G. L. Page, is at the point of death, at her home in that place. The many friends of both G. L. Page and wife hope the good lady will recover.

Danny Sullivan gave a reception to above gentlemen Monday evening and sang the following song which we beg to submit to our readers:

Four jolly "brass pounders" of fame and renown,
Have just been elected to serve in our town;
We are very much pleased, this assertion to make,
And all tip our hats to Auditor Krape.

Supervisor Frank Hoag, so handsome and tall,
Also School Director, his title is called;
Then two solid Jnstices, the law well will guage
We are proud to salute "Squires" Eddy and Page.

Our town is now safe for some time to come,
The voters are happy, their duty well done;
We are sure of good times, there is naught to prevent,
Our good town from booming, aud we are content. J. F. S.
